From the Editor ...

This Autumn issue of Reform makes its way to subscribers a little early this year, with this edition published to coincide with the Australasian Law Reform Agencies Conference (ALRAC), hosted by the Law Reform Commission of Western Australia.

It is the first time that the conference will be held in conjunction with a meeting of the Commonwealth Law Reform Agencies.

Reform sees its role as providing a convenient forum for the discussion of issues of law reform, both in Australia and overseas. Thus the Australian Law Reform Commission is delighted to be able to contribute to the ALRAC meeting with this special issue of the journal.

The theme of the Perth conference is 'Globalisation and law reform: cooperation through technology', and this issue of Reform reflects that theme in its main articles.

We have sought contributions from people in a number of fields, asking them to consider what impact globalisation has on their areas of expertise.

We are privileged to have Reform's founding Editor, the Hon Justice Michael Kirby of the High Court of Australia, contribute to the journal once more. His article, examining the impact of globalisation on human rights, begins on page 6.

Other authors examine globalisation and the environment (page 33), electronic commerce (page 44), the changes wrought by globalisation on the legal profession (page 19) and, of course, the impact on law reform agencies (page 25).

We have attempted in this edition of Reform to expand the number of agencies represented in the 'Reform Roundup' section of our journal – we welcome first-time contributions from the Queensland Criminal Justice Commission, the Law Reform Commission of Hong Kong and the Bangladesh Law Commission.

I would like to extend an invitation to all delegates at the Perth conference to contribute to this section for Issue 77, to be published in October 2000.

When preparing contributions, contributors should note the following points:

- 1/ Articles can be sent via fax or E-mail or, if submitted on a disc, should be in WordPerfect, or Word 6, both for Macintosh or in RTF format. A hard-copy should also be forwarded to the Commission. (E-mail or disc are preferred.)
- 2/ All articles submitted on paper should be typed in double-space on one side only of A4 paper.
- 3/ The name, address and phone number of the author must be attached to the article.
- 4/ Articles should be between 1000 and 3500 words in length. Shorter articles are welcome. Contributions to 'Reform Roundup' should be under 1000 words.
- 5/ Articles submitted to Reform should be in final form as corrections on proofs will be limited to literal errors or changes necessitated by legal developments.
- 6/ Articles submitted to Reform for publication must be original and not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere, except by prior arrangement.
- 7/ The Australian Law Reform Commission (ALRC) reserves the right to republish all material on its homepage on the Internet and to use all accepted articles for promotion of the journal.
- 8/ The ALRC reserves the right to edit submitted articles so they conform with Reform's writing style. The Editor will seek to contact contributors to verify changes before publication.

Style

- 1/ All articles must be written in clear, accessible language.
- 2/ Contributors should seek to minimise the use of endnotes. Where possible, citations should be included in the body of the text.
- 4/ All legislation, international instruments, organisations and cases referred to should be clearly identifiable.
- Gender neutral language should be used.
- 4/ Avoid unnecessary punctuation. Abbreviations should not be followed by a full stop.
