

These days, clients expect a lot more than just plain legal advice...

Clients' expectations are a lot higher than they used to be. More than ever, they demand quality service and value for money – and that means providing much more than strictly legal advice.

The CCH Australian Business Advisers Guide is a highly practical loose-leaf service designed to assist you when giving advice on all aspects of business – from starting a business to running a business and even leaving a business.

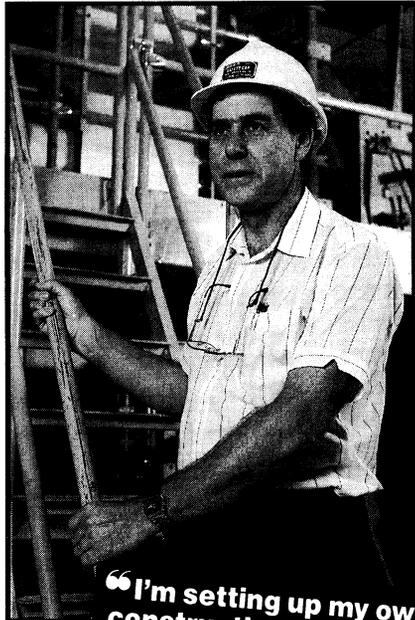

The Guide is written by a team of CCH editors in conjunction with consultants Pannell Kerr Forster, Robert Baxt, Andrew Lang and a number of other contributing authors and organisations.

In two volumes, it covers topics like:

- tax
- employment law
- intellectual property
- business finance
- superannuation
- avoiding failure and much more.

Throughout the year, at least ten comprehensive loose-leaf reports will keep you up to date with developments in these areas. The Guide even includes numerous checklists which you can simply photocopy and hand over to your clients.

IBA conference: transferable registrations

The International Bar Association (IBA) is offering Territory lawyers transferable registrations for its 25th biennial conference, to be held in Melbourne from October 9-14.

This is the first time the IBA has offered this type of registration, which will allow law firms, corporate legal departments, barristers' chambers, law faculties and small groups of practitioners to send different delegates to the working sessions at different times. The conference is expected to attract 2,000 lawyers from around the world.

This registration offer is exclusively for Australian lawyers. Transferable registration will cost 500 pounds (payable in Australian dollars at the exchange rate at time of payment).

Costs will cover one official conference badge and one set of working materials. Each badge holder will be responsible for passing on the badge and materials to colleagues as they attend the conference.

Transferable registration does not include free conference papers, free IBA membership or attendance at the opening ceremony and reception — all of which are included in the full advance registration fee of 650 pounds (or 725 pounds if registering at the conference).

Those wishing to take advantage of the transferable registration offer, or anyone seeking information about the conference, should contact the IBA, 2 Harewood Place, Hanover Square, London W1R 9HB, England (telephone 44 71 629 1206 or fax 44 71 409 0456).

Practitioners can also register from Monday, October 10 at the IBA Conference registration desk in the World Congress Centre, corner of Spencer and Flinders Streets, Melbourne. Call (03) 629 4100.

For an information brochure and registration form call Mary Fleming at the Law Council of Australia on (06) 247 3788.
