

Early Takeup of Legal Encyclopedia on CD

Australian Lawyers have been quick to recognise the potential of the new CD-ROM services being offered by the Law Book Company.

Pictured here is David Bennett QC, Senior Vice President of the NSW Bar Association, taking delivery of the newly released CD-ROM - The Laws of Australia on CD-ROM from Patrick Waters, NSW Sales Manager for The Law Book Company.

Mr Bennett is one of the first subscribers to the service. Having been in practice for over 27 years, he is well-placed to judge the value of the work. He has been a long-time subscriber to The Laws of Australia in its paper form, but has now also subscribed to the CD-ROM service because of his love of computers and because he finds the CD-ROM version "well-organised and easy to use".

Basically, delivery of large services like The Laws of Australia on CD-ROM with retrieval software, you are able to search over the entire database, in seconds.

You can be as specific or as general in your query as you wish, and Folio Views® (the software adopted by The Law Book Company for its CD-ROM works) will help you view your results in context. No meaningless searching through hundreds of hits. The software helps you refine your search in a number of clever ways, ways that save you time and frustration. Another advantage of Folio software is its compatibility across DOS, Windows and Macintosh platforms.

The Laws of Australia is one of the core services that forms part of The Law Book Company's Complete Legal Research System. With The Australian Digest on CD-ROM due for release in December and the other component services The Australian Legal Monthly Digest and The Australian Case Citator to be released on CD-ROM in early 1995, lawyers will soon have access to leading suite of research works available in Australia today, all from their desktop PC.
