The Australian Securities Commission (ASC) hosted a successful Dinner and "Hypothetical" in Darwin on 16 November 1995.

Over 100 local lawyers, accountants, bankers and local business people attended and heard a panel of local practitioners deal with a hypothetical scenario which illustrated issues of honesty and fairness in business.

The visiting Chairman of the ASC, Alan Cameron took on the role of Moderator and presented a case study which illustrated many of the new corporate laws and how compliance issues might arise in practice. Members of the panel enjoyed the opportunity to play the roles of people engaged in conflicts of interests, ethical dilemmas, and questionable conduct producing a case study which was entertaining and instructive.

ASC Regional Commissioner for the Northern Territory, Jan Speirs, said that she wished to thank Darwin legal practitioners Neville Henwood, Judith Kelly, Peter Barr and Brian Cassells for taking part as panel members and said that it was pleasing to see so many lawyers attend the dinner.
