Commonwealth Secretariat

The Commonwealth Secretariat maintains a computerised database of personnel, highly qualified and experienced in a wide range of disciplines. This database is used to identify candidates for vacancies at the Secretariat's headquarters in London, technical assistance assignments in developing Commonwealth countries, the Commonwealth Service Abroad Programme and work in the regional centres of the Commonwealth Youth Programme.

For current and future needs they would like to expand their database of Commonwealth nationals with the professional qualifications and experience in senior positions particularly in the following areas:

commercial crime; environment; forestry; fisheries; mineral petroleum and trade legislation; financial and capital market regulation; insurance; intellectual property; international and constitutional law; land registration; legal/legislative drafting; law revision; maritime boundary delimitation; off-shore banking; privatisation; taxation; treaty succession.

The Secretariat is making special efforts to appoint more women both at headquarters and overseas and therefore especially invites them to respond.

To be included in the database, please complete an application form available from:
