Australian Centre for Environmental Law

ACEL advise that they will be running a course in Darwin for the Dept of Lands, Planning and Environment intended for private managers and public service managers.

The course is entitled Environmental Compliance and Due Diligence and will address the following:

- the new NT pollution Laws
- how to meet environmental responsibilities
- regulation, liability and incentives.

Presenters will be Professor Neil Gunningham and Mr Martin Phillipson. The course will take place on 25 and 26 July at the Novotel Atrium. A registration form is available from the Law Society or contact ACEL at the Law Faculty, ANU on tel: 02 6249 3487, fax: 02 6249 4899.

ACEL also offers a Graduate Program in Environmental Law to meet the professional development needs of individuals living outside the ACT. The coursework in this program is based entirely on intensive units, each involving lectures, seminars and small group teaching over 6-8 hours a day over a number of consecutive days.

Mid-year enrolment is invited and ACEL can be contacted for further information on tel: 02 6249 3487, fax: 02 6249 4899.
