

Law Week 1998

11-18 May

Make Sense of the Law

Law Week is set nationally for 11-18 May and will provide the legal community with the opportunity to focus public attention on what it is, what it does and what services it can offer.

The national theme for 1998 is Make Sense of the Law and activities are being planned around that focus.

National activities

Each jurisdiction around Australia will be conducting a "BloodRush" which all members of the legal community are asked to support. Blood donations may be given at Red Cross Blood Services in Darwin and Alice Springs and all firms, government departments and other legal areas are asked to support this. Full details will be advised before Law Week.

All jurisdictions will also be undertaking fund-raising for a children's charity during Law Week.

Local Activities

Various interest groups within the legal community have been approached with a view to providing informative public activities. Events-in-the-making to date include a play/mock trial to be produced by NT Women Lawyers Association, an information stall in the Mall organised by NTLAC and a public session on how to run a small claim conducted by the NT Young Lawyers Association.

ciation.

Displays of material and information will again be mounted in public libraries and the now-traditional Tug-of-War to launch Law Week will be hotly contested.

The Law Week lunch will again be held at Parliament House as the final Law Week activity.

Law Week is a time to generate a positive attitude to the legal profession and those who work in it.

Help your profession put a positive focus on the work it does during Law Week 1998.
