

Native Title – your step-by-step guide

WHY ARE THE AMENDMENTS IN THE 10 POINT PLAN UNFAIR?

- For various reasons.

NT Lawyers for reconciliation say that the most important reason is that in practice the proposed amendments will leave indigenous Australians with almost no say over development even though their native title rights are put seriously at risk. They will have no say when development is to occur on (a) past or present pastoral leases; (b) forestry, water or mining reserves; (c) defence areas; or in (d) towns, the sea or parks. They will keep the right to negotiate over very little of Australia, possibly less than 10%.

The right of indigenous Australians to negotiate over development on their land is the most important right which recognition of native title has given them. The right to compensation for the loss of native title rights in much of arid and remote Australia will often be worth very little. The right to negotiate may result in employment, better health and education, and cultural security for communities of indigenous Australians, and gives them a stake in development (so that they are partners rather than mere bystanders).

The proposed amendments also promote the wholesale destruction of native title by allowing upgrading of pastoral leases to freehold at public expense. They also provide for a 6 year time limit in which to bring all native title claims. In a country as large as Australia, with scattered and diverse communities of indigenous Australians, this deadline is simply impractical.

Some indigenous Australians argue that the proposed amendments will mean the Racial Discrimination Act does not apply to the NTA, and that the tests for the right of native title claimants to negotiate for access to pastoral leases for ceremonial activities etc may be made too difficult.

Work Health – Achievements and Plans for the Future

The Minister for Work Health, Mr Denis Burke, MLA has provided the Law Society with a copy of a statement outlining the government's work health achievements to date and plans for the future.

The paper includes strategies aimed at preventing workplace injury, which he expects that the Work Health Authority will implement.

Whilst the Minister identifies workplace safety and fair compensation as key concerns of the NT Government, he notes that the cost of workers compensation in the NT last year was $25 million.

Practitioners interested in the text of Mr Burke's statement may obtain a copy from the Law Society.

High Court Rules – Amendments to Second Schedule – 4.5% Rise

The Second Schedule to the High Court Rules specifies the amount which solicitors who are entitled to practise in the High Court, may charge and be allowed on taxation of costs by the Taxing Officer of the Court in respect of proceedings in the Court.

The amounts in the Schedule were last varied by Statutory Rule No 11, made on February 1997 and which came into operation on 3 March 1997.

The Federal Costs Advisory Committee, in its report to the Justices dated February 9 1998 recommended an increase of 4.5% to the solicitors' costs as set out in the Second Schedule.

The Court has agreed to the recommendation of the Committee and the increase, which came into operation on Monday 4 May 1998, will apply in respect of all work done and services performed by solicitors after 3 May 1998.

A copy of the Schedule may be obtained from the Law Society.

Commencement of Legislation

The NT Attorney-General's Department advise that the Real Property (Unit Titles) Amendment Act will commence operation on the date of publication in the Northern Territory Gazette of the notice signed by the Administrator on 13 May.

It was anticipated that this would appear in Gazette G19 of 20 May 1998.

The Department advises further that the Local Court Amendment Act and Small Claims Amendment Act which will, amongst other things, increase the jurisdiction of the Local Court and Small Claims Court to $100,000 and $10,000 are to commence on 1 June 1998. New Local Court Rules and Small Claims Rules will also commence on that date.

Practitioners are reminded an "unofficial" version of the Rules may be obtained from the Law Society by providing a disk on to which they may be copied. Printed copies of the Rules will be available from the Government Information Centre shortly.

Mediation

misunderstood by an intelligent, well educated and dynamic society; perhaps there is no 'alternative' to lawyers engaging as leaders in consensual dispute resolution!

The next LEADR Mediation Training Workshop in Darwin will be conducted between 15th and 18th July 1998.

Please contact LEADR Sydney on telephone (02) 9233 2255 Fax 02 9232 3024 to register.

For those for whom that is an inconvenient time, the Accord Group will deliver its training 11th – 13th August 1998 (Tel: 02 9264 2327). Alternatively, the Institute of Arbitrators and Mediators will in 1999 offer its arbitration and mediation training through various Australian universities (For details please contact Chri Cureton at Clayton Utz 8943 2555).
