

PEOPLE AND THE LAW

Tim Pritchard is lawyer with the Environmental Defenders Office in Darwin.

Background: Born in England; law degree at Southampton University, practised at the bar for three years; came to Darwin in 1989 for two weeks. Still here.

Most memorable case/file? How long have you got? All right, any victories against the odds.

Who are your role models and why? Nelson Mandela, Mahatma Gandhi and the Dalai Lama, for obvious reasons. None in the law (yet), sorry!

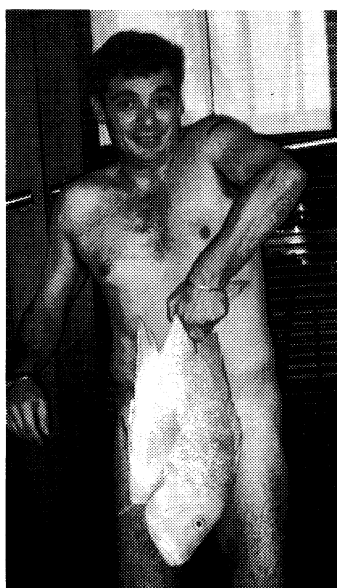

Your favourite place in the NT? Casuarina beach for the endless sand, sea and sky.

Community involvement: Does working for a community legal service count? I am also a volunteer with Darwin Community Legal Service.

Complete this sentence: I couldn't live without... Friends and family; sunshine, fresh air and water; a few laps of the pool; and of course my motorbike.

If you were down to your last $50 what would you buy? A long lunch with my best friend ($49); bus ticket to Centrelink ($1).

What book are you reading at the moment? The Age of Kali, William Dalrymple; Uriel's Machine, Knight and Lomas.

Markus Spazzapan is a lawyer in private practice in Darwin.

Background: Part of the multicultural experiment: boat person of German/Italian/Dutch/Yugoslav extraction, fortunately with visa.

Most memorable case/file: A pissy motor vehicle crash and bash hearing before a magistrate during the early 80s for which a judgement was never handed down.

Who are your role models and why? Justice Kirby, for the light of humanity he fuels; all people worldwide who toil to survive for making me realise how selfish I'm capable of being; all people who struggle each day to care for their loved ones.

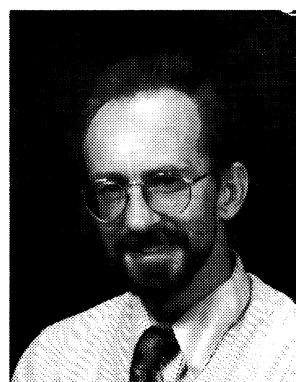

Your favourite place in the NT and why: Mangrove swamps around Darwin. No-one ever goes there and its like being on a different planet.

Community involvement: Have done, not now — maybe in the future.

Complete this sentence. I couldn't live without... Suzan and our passports.

If you were down to your last $50.00 what would you buy? Something small for all the children in my life.

What book are you reading at the moment? Nomads of the Australian Desert by Charles Mountford.

Peer Shroter is a Partner at Povey Stirk in Alice Springs.

Background: Articles in Darwin (Jenny Blokland and I were it!) and never left the Territory (close to 20 years).

Most memorable case/file? Defence of health prosecution of Kentucky Fried Chicken. "Cockroach with its legs uppermost" (the 13th herb and spices) circa 1981 (they were fined $40).

One flew over the Colonel's nest

The Weekend Advertiser, August 1980.

Who are your role models? Howard Hughes — amassed great wealth and a fat lot of good it did him as a hermit.

Your favourite place in the NT and why? Bike ride to Simpsons Gap because its cosmic.

Community involvement? Doing good works as a solicitor is sufficient.

Complete this sentence. I couldn't live without... a 50m swimming pool.

If you were down to your last $50 what would you buy? $50 worth.

What book are you reading at the moment? Diplomacy by Henry Kissinger.
