

photo album

The Annual Dinner and tribute “roast” of retiring Magistrate Alasdair McGregor OAM

The Territory legal fraternity turned out in style to farewell magistrate Alasdair McGregor who retired earlier in the month.

The Law Society and Chief Magistrate jointly hosted the dinner at Pee Wees at the Point where 160 attendees dined on a sumptuous meal and heard some funny yarns about the laconic Australian/Scot.

Highlights included a video of messages from “absent friends” (complete with a specially devised performance by Suzan “McCox” and Jenny “McBloks”) and a surprise strip by the guest-of-honour. Mr McGregor pointed out one of the highlights of his career had been opening the Lajamanu Rodeo and he proudly wore the t-shirt under his traditional Scottish garb to prove it.

The Law Society presented Mr McGregor with a copy of the video and a specially compiled book of messages from the legal fraternity.

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP LEFT:

John and Asha McLaren with Mark Hunter.

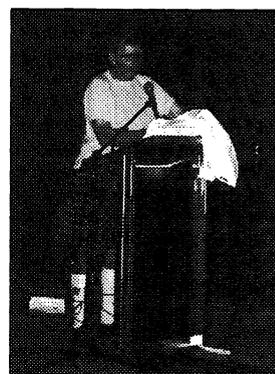

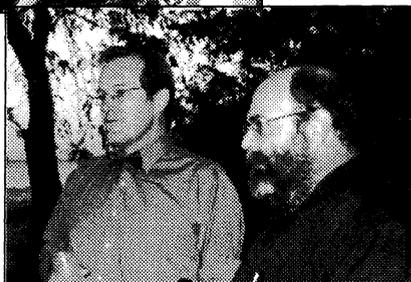

Enjoying the sunset were (from left) Eileen Terrill, Stewart Brown and Elizabeth Morris.

Chief Minister Clare Martin with Mr McGregor.

The Chief Minister catches up with the Department of Justice’s Sue Oliver.

Barrister David Alderman with emcee and host for the evening Society president Ian Morris.

De Silva Hebron’s table included (from left) Merran Short, Jo Tomlinson, Michael Davis and Maria Davis.

Above: Thanks to Lajamanu Rodeo.... Going..... Going..... GONE!!!