committee and provide policy advice to the Government.

The Committee will involve women's shelters, victim support groups, rape crisis centres, police, ATSIC and other people working with domestic violence. The idea is to increase community input and look at what is currently being done to address the problem of domestic violence and provide support for its victims and therefore evaluate where things need to go from here.

The DVLS unit is being run out of the Legal Aid offices in Cavenagh Street Darwin, and can be contacted on 8999-3000.
