

Movers and shakers

Margaret Orwin has recently moved from Janet Terry to work for the Legal Aid Commission.

Marko Cvjeticanin has left Ward Kellar to practice as a barrister at William Forster Chambers.

Mark Johnston has left of the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions to practice as a barrister at Edmund Barton Chambers.

Ian Rowbottam has left Edmund Barton Chamber to join Withnall Maley.

Illness of the Catfish

LSNT Immediate Past President Ian Morris has recently had an unfortunate bout of illness which will see him lying low for some months.

Ian has been heard to quip that the illness came on because he had to spend two years being nice to people while he was President.

Although others have been heard to suggest that he may have made himself sick worrying about what to do with all his spare time now that he has passed on the Presidency.

Alisdair Shields celebrating a decade at DOJ

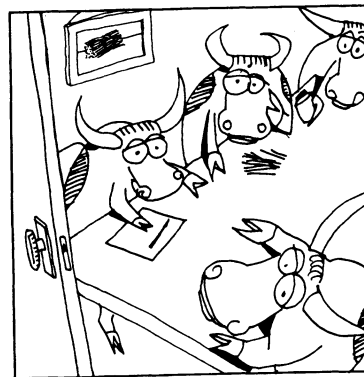

Alisdair Shields recently celebrated ten years in the Commercial section of the Department of Justice (DOJ).

His DOJ colleagues helped him celebrate with a "Come as Alasdair" theme. Needless to say there were many interesting shirts that made an appearance.

Parliamentary debate

At a recent LSNT Council meeting one quick wit suggested that the parliamentary debate on gay law reform, which went late into the night, may have been a mass debate.

The Muster Room

A little slice of gold

At the Alice Springs Judgment Day workshop on sentencing, one community member came to this revelation all on their own: "So when the Government criticises the magistrates for sentencing, they are really just criticising the sentencing regulations that they set".^①

We offer a full range of forensic science services in the investigation of fires and explosions including

- direct incident investigation (origin & cause, liability, recovery etc.)
- laboratory analysis and interpretation of results
- assessment and commentary on previous investigation findings
- expert testimony and advice to counsel (criminal and civil litigation)

We have particular expertise in

- incidents involving fatalities
- interpretation of thermal injury distribution
- gas and vapour explosions
- electrical systems and causes of fire
- interpretation of documentary and photographic evidence
- laboratory testing of fire-related evidence

Jim Munday has specialised in fire and explosion investigation since 1979, with Scotland Yard's forensic laboratory and in private practice in the UK & Australia. He has investigated more than 1700 fire and explosion incident scenes, including over 300 fatalities, and carried out laboratory testing on materials from many others. He has given expert evidence in many courts.

Trained as a forensic chemist, Jim is also a qualified fire engineer and one of the few holders of the prestigious Diploma in Fire Investigation awarded by the UK Forensic Science Society. He has made a special study of the way in which distribution of skin burns and other thermal injuries relates to the location, position and activities of the person involved.

Our Senior International Associates include Dr John DeHaan (USA) and Mr Michael Gardiner (UK).
