

polished title pages that display the name of the case, your name, the name of your organization, the date and so on. CaseMap's built-in PDF Writer means that reports can be PDFed with one mouse click. A mouse click can also send cast of character information from CaseMap to Word or WordPerfect for inclusion in briefs and other word-processing documents.

Reports based on the cast of characters can be included in CaseMap's unique ReportBook work product. A ReportBook is a compilation of any number of CaseMap case analysis spreadsheet reports along with a Title Page, a Confidentiality Statement, a Table of Contents, and more. For example, one ReportBook can contain a cast of characters, a fact chronology, an index of key documents and an issue outline.

BOTTOM LINE

The bottom line: CaseMap is specifically designed to be the home for your investigation of the chronology, cast of characters and other critical case analysis information. If you're not already using CaseMap, please try the full-featured trial version that's available at www.casesoft.com.

CaseMap links with TimeMap, a timeline-graphing tool. And you can send key facts from your transcripts to CaseMap using TextMap, a transcript summary tool. CaseMap also integrates with over a dozen other litigation support and electronic discovery tools including Acrobat, Binder, Concordance, iCONNECT, IPRO, JFS Litigator's Notebook, KPMG's DiscoveryRadar, LiveNote, Sanction, and Summation.
