

AROL Mills, William Merrylees Librarian at Charles Sturt University—Riverina has accepted a contract for the position of University Librarian, University of the South Pacific in Suva, Fiji. She will be on leave from CSU until March 1995. The USP Library supports university library services in its eleven member countries, and the interests of over 11 000 students.

Carol Mills

For the time being the Acting William Merrylees Librarian will be

Stephen Parnell, formerly Deputy Librarian.

Carol would be most happy to see colleagues flying by drop in for a visit.

Lee Welch appears earlier in this issue, sitting on a mountaintop in Utah, but she posted her inCite article from Ethiopia. She writes: 'As you can see from the above address, during the months since Snowbird there were some fairly radical changes to my activities. I am currently residing in a little town called Jijiga in the eastern Ethiopian highlands, a far cry from Business Information! I will shortly be commencing work with the libraries of two aid projects here—hopefully that may produce another letter for inCite!'

Dick Goodram, whom many will remember from his days in UNSW, NLA and University of Tasmania, is currently Associate University Librarian for Collection Management and Information Technology at San Diego State University. He has been responsible for the conception and design of a new system there, the Electronic Reserve

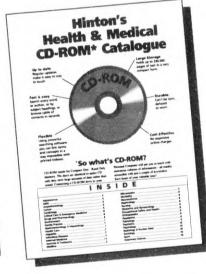

Book Room. This enables students to access their assigned readings via PCs linked to a database of images held on a WORM drive. The students can view the first page of any document and then, if they choose, receive a copy of the entire document by laser printer. The system is designed to be self-funding: it will not only recover the capital and running costs over four years but also pay an agreed percentage fee to copyright holders. Very interesting stuff, Dick...

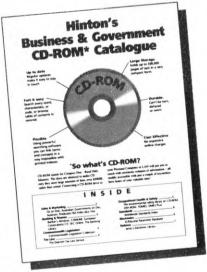

The University of Canberra hasn't actually moved, but it has just installed a new and larger PABX, so that the prefix for all University telephone numbers is now 201. The old extension numbers still apply: eg., the Secretary for Library and Information Studies is (06) 201 2312, fax (06) 201 5119.

Dean Leith has been appointed to the newly created position of Associate Librarian at the University of Western Sydney, Hawkesbury Library. Dean was formerly Management Development Librarian at the University of NSW library.
