An update on Online Australia Day

Friday 27 November 1998

As you probably know, Online Australia Day will be staged nationally on Friday 27 November 1998 and will increase the awareness among the general community and business of the benefits of going online. Online Australia Day is a major initiative of the Australian Government which is being developed and co-ordinated by the National Office for the Information Economy (NOIE).

Online Australia Day will bring the community together online through a 'Virtual Expo' website and a series of community events staged around Australia.

This is a great opportunity for libraries to promote their online services to their local communities and to demonstrate the key importance of public access. Many libraries around Australia are becoming part of the day by organising their own local events.

Examples of events arranged by libraries include: internet training and display classes aimed at specific sectors of the community (for example, the elderly); virtual morning or afternoon teas, internet displays; and links to online activities in other libraries across the country.

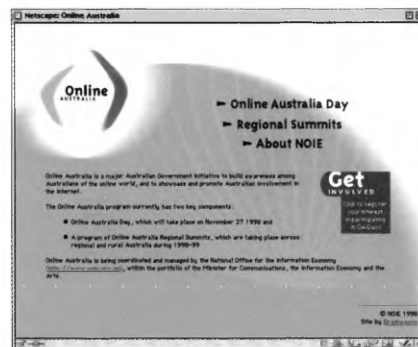

Who's where

Recent appointments in the library and information services sector

Tim Burke was recently appointed business development manager for Electric Library Australasia with The Information Specialists, a member of the Infosentials Group. Tim will be responsible for launching Electric Library Australasia (see advertisement p7 of this issue) and marketing the product to schools, libraries and academic institutions throughout Australia.

SilverPlatter's Australian office has a new regional manager, Robert McKinney. Robert has been with SilverPlatter since 1992, serving as director of technology planning, director of business development for the international division, and manager of strategic alliances. He assisted with the successful world-wide launch of SilverPlatter's Electronic Reference Library technology.

IHS Australia is pleased to announce the appointment of Katie Blake as managing director for Australian operations. Katie Libraries are encouraged to use the official Online Australia Day website as part of their event, as this site will include a range of high-quality and live content on the day. A range of marketing material — posters, postcards and Online Australia Guides is being provided to libraries participating in the day.

Further details on how to organise an event, or for support information, visit the Online Australia website at <http://www.onlineaustralia.net.au>. The opportunity to register your interest is also available on this site.

The Online Australia hotline number is: 1800 000 255 or you can send an e-mail to onaust@vicnet.net.au.

will be taking on the role of managing director to replace Stephen Austin, who has been promoted within IHS Group and recalled to the head office in Denver, Colorado. For the past two years Katie has worked with SilverPlatter Information setting up their Australian office. She is in high demand as a guest speaker at conferences, and has presented a number of papers in Australia and overseas.

Ashley Prather took the reins as the Art Library Society of North America's newest executive director in October.

Blackwell's Book Services US have announced that Mervyn D Yeatman has been appointed to the position of vice president, distribution; Don Satsky has been appointed senior vice-president of marketing and sales; and Jack Walsdorf has accepted the position as vice president for library relations for both the book and information services divisions.
