

Gold Coast librarians' network

Bond University Library hosted a networking event for Gold Coast librarians on Tuesday 26 March 2002. Librarians from schools, public, academic and special libraries gathered to listen to Professor Bruce Molloy discuss the film and television industry in the region.

After the presentation tours of the libraries were conducted the visitors expressed interest in such services as the wireless access to the university network for students and staff at Bond.

The event was an opportunity for local librarians to forge new links and share experiences and ideas.

Gulcin Cribb, the director of Bond University Library Services said networking amongst librarians who work in the Gold Coast area is very important for professional development. It is often very difficult for Gold Coast librarians to attend continuing education activities in Brisbane due to distance. Regular get-togethers such as these can assist librarians learn from each other, exchange ideas, support each other and share professional information in order to provide better services and resources for our customers.

Organisers Peta Hopkins and Jovena Ling said they were very happy with the number of attendees and the wide cross-section of libraries represented. The Tweed Heads and Gold Coast Hospital libraries, the Tweed-Richmond Library Service and the Gold Coast Hinterland and Environment Council were represented showing that state borders and different fields of interest are no barrier in the library community. ■

LISEKA Project

Friday 21 June is the deadline to have your say on LISEKA

See the papers at <http://www.alia.org.au/education/liseka/> or check out the summary version published in last month's inCite.

What do you think about the models for future education of information professionals?

Is your ALIA Group discussing the issues?

The LISEKA Project Working Group needs input on the models from members, groups and other stakeholders.

To make sure you have your say e-mail your submissions/comments to liseka@alia.org.au or lodge them via the feedback form at <http://www.alia.org.au/education/liseka/feedback.form.html>, or post them to ALIA National Office by Friday 21 June 2002.

Printed copies of the papers are available from ALIA National Office on request. ■
