Aboriginal Studies Press

The Press is AIATSIS's publishing arm to the general book trade and particular communities of interest. It publishes outstanding writing in any genre that reflects and promotes greater understanding of Indigenous Australian cultures and peoples.

The list includes books written by Indigenous and non-Indigenous authors. The titles range from academic works across a spectrum of disciplines and, increasingly, creative prose that describes and explores elements of Indigenous cultures and lifestyles. Subject areas include art, biography, contemporary studies, education and health, history and anthropology, language, land rights and native title. The Press also publishes literature for children and young adults.

Centre for Information Studies, Charles Sturt University

Last year the Centre for Information Studies published five new titles including:

- Research methods for students, academics and professionals;
- Collection management: A concise introduction;
- Information management: A consolidation of operations, analysis and strategy;
- Performing hybridity: Impact of new technologies on the role of teacher-librarians;
- Providing more with less: Collection management for Australian school libraries (2nd ed).

This year we were privileged to publish Popular literature for children and adolescents by Dr John Foster (University of South Australia). Eagerly awaited was the third edition of Computers for librarians: An introduction to the electronic library by Stuart Ferguson with Rodney Hebls.

Three more titles will be published by early 2004:

RMIT Publishing

RMIT Publishing is pleased to announce that the content on Informit Library has increased this year from twenty to eighty titles covering various subject areas including arts, business, cultural studies, education, film, health, history, indigenous issues, information management, law, media, public affairs and social issues. Current titles are available for browsing at <http://www.informit.com.au/library/>.

The Informit Library e-press contains cover-to-cover electronic journals, monographs, conference proceedings and research papers.

The existing Informit Library interface provides search access by title, author, subject and source as well as the ability to browse resources using tables of contents.

As part of our ongoing development, we plan to fully integrate the Informit Library e-press into the new Informit Search interface by the middle of 2004.

Combined with your current subscriptions to full text databases such as APA-FT, AGIS Plus Text and Meditext, along with dozens of bibliographic databases, Informit will continue to be your major source of Australasian online research information.

Thomson Gale

Gale, a business of The Thomson Corporation, serves the world's information and education needs through its vast and dynamic content pools, which are used by students and consumers in their libraries, schools and on the internet. The company is best known for the accuracy, breadth and convenience of its data, addressing all types of information needs — in a variety of formats — books, web-based solutions and microfilm.

The Gale family of publishing imprints includes such noted reference brands as Macmillan Reference USA and Charles Scribner's Sons. Gale also serves the school market with its U.X.L, Greenhaven Press, Lucent Books, KidHaven Press and Blackbirch Press imprints. Thorndike Press, Walker Large Print and Wheeler Publishing serve libraries' large print collections. Gale operating companies include distinguished German reference publisher K.G. Saur and the UK-based Graham & Whiteside.
