

NOW SHOWING AT A LIBRARY NEAR YOU!

down and loaded
the right information @ the right time

STARRING YOU AND YOUR LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SERVICES
REPUTABLE ACCURATE AWARE KNOWLEDGEABLE
INFORMATION EXPERTS PROVIDING TARGETED
EVIDENCE-BASED JUST-IN-TIME SERVICES

 Australian Library and Information Association
http://ali.org.au
phone 02 6215 8222

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SERVICES

Down and loaded: the right information @ the right time

Library and Information Week 2004 is proudly supported by

Australian Government
NetAlert Limited

Hurry, order your promotional merchandise now!

Library and Information Week is from 24 to 30 May 2004. This is your last chance to order merchandise to help publicise the week, and your library and information service to your clientele. Order through the online catalogue at <http://alia.org.au/advocacy/alw/2004/>.

There are posters, bookmarks, tattoos and stickers available. Also, as a special offer, bulk packs of previous Library and Information Week posters are available at fantastic discounts.

Don't forget to let your colleagues around the country know about your successful LIW 2004 events. inCite welcomes contributions from libraries of all types from around the country. If you would like to discuss a story idea contact the editor, Emma Davis, on 02 6215 8231 or incite@alia.org.au.

Sponsors announced

ALIA is delighted to confirm two sponsors for Library and Information Week, NetAlert and SIRSI.

NetAlert provide practical advice on internet safety, parental control and internet filters for the protection of children, students and families. Whether you are wishing to learn about the potential dangers for children online or are looking for a solution to a problem already encountered, NetAlert can assist. Find out more about NetAlert at <http://www.netalert.net.au>.

SIRSI offer a broad array of advanced software and service offerings built from the ground up for libraries including analytical tools to manage library data, broadcast search technology that enables effective searching, integrated library management systems and solutions for all library types. Find out more at <http://www.sirsi.com>.

Welcome to both our sponsors. We look forward to working with them to make LIW 2004 a great success. ■

ALIA Health Libraries Australia — Swets Professional Envoy Award

The ALIA Health Libraries Australia — Swets Professional Envoy Award recognises a health library and information professional who demonstrates significant achievement, a commitment to continuing excellence and/or leadership in the provision of health information in Australia.

SWETS

The ALIA Health Libraries Australia — Swets Professional Envoy Award is a biennial award that aims to enable the recipient to travel outside Australia to investigate significant developments and/or recent innovations in health and biomedical libraries and information services. Candidates examining new developments, technologies or services not yet seen in Australia that would be of interest or relevance to Australian health libraries are more likely to be successful in being granted an award.

Candidates must be currently employed as a librarian or information professional in the health or biomedical sector and must be members of ALIA Health Libraries Australia (HLA). Current members of the HLA executive are excluded from applying for the award. No formal academic qualifications are required.

Nominations

Nominations forms and further information can be obtained from Patrick O'Connor, president, Health Libraries Australia, ph 07 4920 6525, patrick_o'connor@health.qld.gov.au, or Mary Peterson, secretary, Health Libraries Australia ph 08 8222 5443 mary.peterson@imvs.sa.gov.au.

Nominations for the first award

The closing date for nominations for the first Award has been extended to 16 April 2004.

The Award will be made to the successful applicant by 30 June 2004. ■