

Well taught

Practitioners and supporters of Australia's teacher librarians and school libraries are celebrating international recognition for two of the sector's most passionate and effective advocates. Australian School Library Association President and educational consultant Karen Bonanno, and teacher librarianship lecturer at Charles Sturt University Lyn Hay are both among recipients of the inaugural Teacher Librarian Leadership Awards – and they are featured on the cover of the April 2012 issue of Teacher Librarian: The Journal for School Library Professionals.

They join colleagues from around the globe honoured by the publication for "working to innovate and create new models of learning and teaching".

Dr. David Loertscher, co-editor of the journal, said these individuals "have shown visionary leadership in the Learning Commons concept and innovation in 21st-century learning."

You can view the digital edition online at www.teacherlibrarian.com. ALIA joins with their colleagues to congratulate both Karen and Lyn on their achievements.
