

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION WEEK 2019

Library and Information Week is your chance to celebrate what makes library and information practitioners such a vital part of Australian communities. Each day of the week celebrates a different aspect of the profession.

Library and Information Week (LIW) gives library and information service professionals the opportunity to showcase their resources, events and services through different programs and events.

In 2019, LIW will be held 20–26 May, and will focus on the fact that library and information professionals bring 'Truth, Integrity and Knowledge' to everything that they do. It's your chance to show your users the parts of your job that make you TIK.

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION WEEK 2019:

Monday 20 May – Truth, Integrity, Knowledge – launch day. Start activities for your users that run across the entire week.

Tuesday 21 May – National Library and Information Technicians' Day – this day provides the opportunity for library technicians to promote their profession and their role in libraries, and for the profession to celebrate their many achievements.

Wednesday 22 May – National Simultaneous Storytime – at 11am participants across Australia will sit down and read Alpacas with Maraccas by Matt Cosgrove. Last year we had a million readers and we want the same if not more for 2019.

Thursday 23 May – Libraries celebrate the Cancer Council's Biggest Morning Tea – invite your community to a morning tea and help raise money for this important cause.

Friday 24 May – ALIA Day – spread the love and let users and other LIS professionals know the good work that ALIA does, including Library and Information Week.

We'd love to see how you celebrate the week. Send in your videos, photos and stories of how you celebrated to (media@alia.org.au) or use the hashtags #LIW2019 #ALIATIK and #NSS2019 on social media. 📸
