

TOGETHER WE ARE STRONGER

For this issue of INCITE we wanted to hear stories of what brings library and information professionals from across Australia and the world together.

We received so many stories that we couldn't include them all, however, those that you will find contain a wealth of information that showcases how library and information staff work together to learn and improve. Whether it is changing their perspective on community engagement through library tours; recognising new avenues for program improvements; building new collections at the British Library; collaboration between library and information professionals and academics; or engaging in ALIA programs, you'll find many stories of what binds us together over the following pages.

This issue demonstrates the common threads between libraries, libraries and information professionals, allied fields, and the broader community and how we can all work together to improve our industry. This issue also coincides with ALIA's peak membership renewal period and we hope that you'll be renewing your membership again this year. As you can clearly see from these stories, together we are stronger.
